March issue highlights

COVER STORY: The Susie-Q in a time warp

In New York State, the New York, Susquehanna & Western's Utica Branch local switches a classic brewery – on street-running, no less – and serves customers on one of the last surviving stretches of New York, Ontario & Western trackage, and conquers the DL&W's Paris Hill to deliver fertilizer for upstate dairy farms.

By sleeper across Britain

Trains' Senior Editor David Lassen rides the Caledonian Sleeper, luxurious overnight trains linking London and Scotland. It is one of only two currently operating railway sleeper services in the United Kingdom.

Pennsylvania Railroad's landmark K4s steam locomotives

The Pennsylvania Railroad's K4s (4-6-2) Pacific locomotive, developed during the Progressive Era, represented a major technological advancement in railroading. Only two survive, and one, the No. 1361, is being restored.

And more!

Features subject to change.

When you want to reach the world's largest audience of people passionate about railroading, a marketing investment in Trains gets results!

Make your impression on this active, engaged audience of railroad enthusiasts. Reply to this message or call me to reserve your spot.
