

"Come ride in a caboose"

We have leased the former Western Pacific diesel shop building and adjacent track area in Portola from the Union Pacific through the City of Portola for our museum site. The 37 acres included in the lease has about 12,000 feet of track including a balloon track for turning equipment and a 16,000 sq. ft. shop building with two tracks running the 220 foot length. A repair and restoration shop facility, library, office and meeting rooms will be included within the structure. Other property improvements include a replica W.P. passenger depot, freight depot for a future model railroad layout, section house, water tank and a picnic and park area.

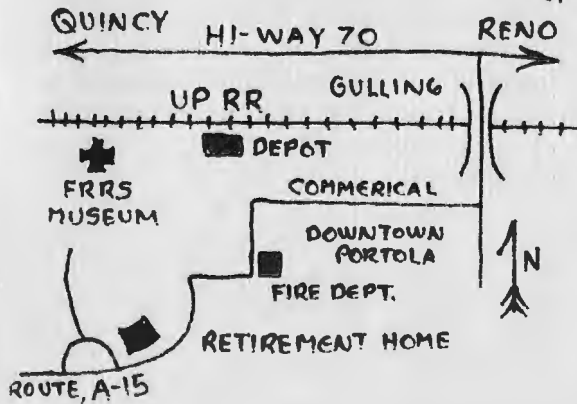

With over 20 diesels the Society has one of the largest collections of preserved diesels and over 50 pieces of freight equipment and every style of WP caboose from wood to steel. All undergoing restoration to correct paint schemes.

UPDDA-40X, 6946, WPF-7A, 921 along with the last Zephyr locomotive WP 805-A are at the museum site.

Location is 150 miles NE of Sacramento and 50 miles NW of Reno, Nevada, along the Feather River Route, West of the present UP RR depot off Route A-15.

Preserving "The Feather River Route"

Preserved in Portola is the WP 501 and EMD SW-1 built in 1939 which was the first diesel on the Western Pacific.

The FEATHER RIVER RAIL SOCIETY, a tax exempt California Corporation, operates the PORTOLA RAILROAD MUSEUM at Portola, California. Formed in February, 1983, to establish a railroad museum in Portola with the purpose of preserving local railroad history in general and Western Pacific Railroad history in particular. As a Society we are involved with restoration and collection of railroad equipment, photos, artifacts, historical information and data.

The FEATHER RIVER RAIL SOCIETY is the Historical Society of and for the Western Pacific Railroad. The WP LIVES on in Portola for the benefit of railfans, authors, modelers, historians and friends of the FEATHER RIVER ROUTE . . .
