MAY-JUNE 1971

They looked, bought and went home happy

There were 250 active and retired employes in line around WP's commissary in Oakland at 9:00 a.m. on Saturday, March 27 when the doors were opened. "When we looked out the line looked more like a mile long!" said Frank Brogdon, assistant manager-material. "And they kept coming all day long, some from as far away as Elko. If we had a 5:00 P.M. closing time, we soon forgot it. Sunday was a little less hectic, but the line was steady."

The people were there for the special sale of passenger car mementos as announced by Bill Luebke, director-purchases and materials, on March 5 at the suggestion of President Alfred E. Perlman. "We no longer have use for these materials," said the president, "and it would be nice if our employees had first choice before they are otherwise disposed of."

The final count showed more than $8,000 received for items varying from CZ match books and coat hangers to silver champagne coolers and silver water pitchers. The most popular items were teapots, and demitasse and regular cups and saucers which sold out early.

Among those helping Frank with the sale at inventory prices were Frank Allain, John Charles, Harold Hancock, Howard Huffman and Blaine Morrison. As the crowd grew larger, Bill Luebke was pressed into service both days, and Otis Albritton, Tony Villegas, Ducey Kerper and Len Lelevich took off their coats to help out.

The sale was orderly as those in line with order blanks passed the tables inspecting samples of available items which were labeled with prices and quantities.

"The people were extremely patient during some rather long waits for service," said Brogdon, "but we had a lot of fun while making the sale a great success."

"Are you SURE you have none of those left?"

"Do you have these glasses in any other size?"

Below: "Hang on to this—it's real heavy!"

Left: "Did you say $12.45?"

George Morrison, Bill Luebke, Howard Huffman, and Harold Hancock, among others, did commendable performances filling orders in the back room and delivering them to the customers out front.

PEOPLE ON THE MOVE

Marketing

Kenneth V. Plummer, Jr., became director-customer services on March 16 with headquarters at San Francisco. His more than 22 years experience in the marketing and operating departments provide him with the necessary background and experience to plan, initiate, and monitor improved services for our customers.

Before joining Western Pacific, Ken spent 12 years in various capacities with Pacific Fruit Express Co. He first worked for WP in November 1948 as supervisor and then superintendent of perishable service. In July 1954 Ken became assistant superintendent of transportation which led to the title of superintendent of transportation in May 1963. With the reorganization of the operating department in April 1970, Ken was selected to head up the transportation section as general superintendent-transportation at Sacramento.

His many years of activities in the Shippers' Advisory Board, the Transportation Club, and Pacific Railway Club, and his participation in many and various industry meetings, have made him well known among Western Pacific's customers.

MILEPOSTS regrets that limited space prevents including names of all employees recently receiving title changes, as well as more complete biographies of all as had been planned. Persons not included will be reported in the next issue as will other personnel changes announced just before this issue went to press. Unfortunately, pictures of some were not available.

Management Services

William J. Day was appointed director-management services, effective April 1, with office at San Francisco.

Bill came to Western Pacific after working as marketing manager for Martin Marietta Corp. in Denver for a little over one year. He was director-management information services for the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad at Denver from 1965 to 1970, before which time he spent about 16 years at various locations with General Electric's manufacturing and marketing management division.

Bill is a native of Casper, Wyoming, and graduated from North Carolina State University in Raleigh, N.C. He earned a BS degree in mechanical engineering. His memberships include the Presbyterian Church and Masonic Lodge #15, Casper, Wyo. Woodworking is his major hobby.

Bill and his wife, Winifred, have three children, Bill, Jr., 22, and Peggy and Martha, teenagers. They hope to locate in the bay area soon.

He came to Western Pacific in February 1964 as a systems analyst in the information systems section. He entered the purchases and stores department in April 1965 as assistant to manager, and became assistant manager in March 1968.

Calder M. Hammond was appointed personnel officer at San Francisco, effective March 1.

Calder worked part time on several jobs while attending University of Utah, including that of yard clerk for the Rio Grande at Roper yard in 1967. He first worked for Western Pacific in October 1968 as an operating department trainee, during which time he attended a General Electric computer programming course in San Francisco. He was made assistant trainmaster at Stockton in April 1969, and a year later was assistant trainmaster at Sacramento until he entered the personnel office.

VP and GM Office

Louis J. Fischer, Jr. was appointed superintendent of safety, with headquarters at San Francisco.

Lou went to work for the railroad right out of college in June 1955, first as a locomotive fireman at Stockton. He became train desk clerk at Oroville in February 1965 and then entered the marketing department. He was sales representative at San Francisco in June 1966 and went to Stockton with the same title in May 1969. He returned to the operating department as assistant trainmaster at Portola in April 1970, and began his present position in January of this year.

Transportation

Robert C. Marquis was appointed general superintendent of transportation (WP-SN-TS) with headquarters at Sacramento, effective March 15. He most recently was general manager-transportation for the Penn Central at Philadelphia.

After his discharge from the Army Air Force in April 1946, Bob entered New York Central service as a telegrapher at Chicago. During the next 10 years he became train dispatcher, transportation inspector, and while trainmaster he was assigned to a committee to study centralized traffic control on the Erie division and for the electronic classification yard at Elkhart, Ind. He next became superintendent, then district transportation superintendent before entering the marketing department as manager of service planning in July 1962. Two years later he was made executive assistant to executive vice president, and in May 1966 he became director of freight car utilization at New York. He took this title with him to Philadelphia when the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads merged in February 1968, which preceded his most recent position with the Penn Central railroad.

Andrew E. Stene was appointed manager-terminals with headquarters at Sacramento, effective March 1.

Andy's first position with Western Pacific was as brakeman in May 1936. He was promoted to conductor in May 1941 and then served as assistant trainmaster at San Francisco and at Sacramento from March 1960 to March 1963, when he became terminal trainmaster at Oakland. Andy has been district superintendent at Sacramento since March 1970.

Harold E. Meeker was appointed district superintendent, Valley district, with headquarters at Sacramento, beginning March 1.

Harold began his railroad career in 1956 as a technical trainee for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. He advanced to assistant division engineer, assistant trainmaster and trainmaster, became director of industrial engineering, and then manager of C&O/B&O corporate planning. Harold joined Western Pacific as executive assistant to the president in January 1967, became assistant chief mechanical officer in November 1969, and has been assistant general manager - service control since May 1970.

Special Agent-Claim Agent

Effective March 16, Robert F. Stenovich was appointed assistant chief special agent-claim agent at San Francisco.

Bob first worked for WP as a carman helper at Elko in June 1943 and then became district special agent-claim agent there in November 1946. He left the railroad in April 1959 to become superintendent of state police for the State of Nevada and returned to WP in July 1966 as district special agent-claim agent at Elko.

Bill Funk wins award for safety suggestion

An idea to replace black covered drop cords with cords having a "Safety Yellow" covering won a share of Western Pacific common stock for William J. Funk, buyer in the purchases and material department, San Francisco. "Bill's winning suggestion for the February award has also resulted in establishing the new yellow covered cords as a system standard for the mechanical department," said James K. Brennan, manager-rules & safety.

Bill's interest in promoting safer working conditions for WP employees didn't originate with his award-winning suggestion, as he was indoctrinated in safety when he first worked in the Oroville store 25 years ago. "His obvious interest in safety, and the originality and enthusiasm he has demonstrated, has been continuous," said Jim Brennan, "for Bill has also contributed many suggestions for our Safety Message program which appears on the stub portion of our paychecks."

Winning the monthly award also makes Bill eligible for the annual award competition, worth an additional 10 shares of WP common stock to the winner.

QUEUE UP FOR SAFETY

"You had a good thing going in February and it's too bad you didn't get this Cue ball for March," Donald MacLeod, VP-GM told Art Carlson, chief engineer. "The next time I stop by I'd like to see three Cue balls in a row on your rack which would give you a Cue stick representing three consecutive months without a reportable injury."

Three retire having two things in common

In addition to each having a WP service of more than 40 years, W. B. Anderson, W. F. Asvitt, and A. C. Strickler can each claim continuous service in one department.

Bill Anderson began service in November 1929 as compressor foreman in the Oakland motor car shop. He next spent three years as assistant general supervisor of roadway work equipment, and for the past year he was assistant manager, maintenance of way equipment and field production.

Burt Asvitt's service has all been in accounting since April 1926. He was waybill tracer clerk at 8th and Brannan streets, general clerk in the Rialto building, payroll clerk in the Mills building, and retired in March as head payroll clerk at 526 Mission street.

Strickler has been known as "Strick" ever since he entered the engineering department as chainman in April 1924. He next became roadman, then inspector on the eastern division. From 1941 to 1945 he was inspector at a sand and gravel pit at Sand Pass, Nev. during summer months. From January 1946 until his retirement he was engineering inspector, junior engineer, field engineer, and senior engineer inspector.

Best wishes go to these three deserving railroaders.

Concluding the party capably arranged by Cliff Gerstner, office engineer, and Betty Hill, roadmaster's clerk, Strickler and Anderson hold former Zephyr silver service set as their wives slyly remove the rolls of currency previously placed in sugar bowls.

Below left: Corporate Secretary Logan Paine with just 12 more days service than Burt extends congratulations, as Manager - Payroll Accounting John Murphy awaits his turn.

Presenting Burt with a clock radio are Natalie King, Chief clerk-payroll; Pat Montana, payroll clerk; Frank Calnan, code clerk; and Betty Hupman, payroll clerk.

Among the more than 100 persons attending the Strickler-Anderson dinner were these retired engineering-roadway employees: Charley Elliott, Tommy Sykes, Gordon Switzer, Frank Woolford (Bill and "Strick"), Gus Kramm, Sid Hennicksen, Charley Forseth.

Meet the Edwards Family

Robert Edwards, former dining car waiter now employed in the freight claim department, and his wife, Ida Mae, have every reason to be proud of their four children.

The two youngest children, Roberta, 18, and James, 17, hold unique honors unusual for a sister and brother. Roberta is president, and James is vice president, of the Emery High School student body in Emeryville, Calif.

Roberta recently took part in a weekly student forum discussion on the need and cost of the Apollo 14 moon shot which might be better used for domestic affairs such as the prevention of pollution, poverty, national disasters such as the recent Los Angeles earthquake and other on-earth problems. Roberta graduates this June and plans to enter college for a career as a probation officer.

James began working at the age of 10 as a Chronicle carrier for three years to save for college, and now works as a recreation aide in the Emery Unified School District's bowling alley after school. He was written up in the September 1967 Chronicle "Carrier" for having given a well prepared talk to the Emeryville City Council on the need for a park with playground facilities across the street from his school which convinced the Council that it should be done. James will graduate in June 1972 and plans to study law.

Louise Edwards, 20, was a pom-pom girl at Emery High School from where she graduated in 1970. She is presently employed by Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco.

Robert, Jr., 22, was also a carrier at the age of 10, first for the Oakland Tribune and later the Chronicle. He graduated from Emery High School in 1968, and is now working with the Job Corps in Anaconda, Montana. His savings will help him to enter college this Fall.

The parents were married in Salt Lake City on March 25, 1949, and Ida Mae is employed by the Anna Yates Elementary School in Emeryville.

NEWS and VIEWS

WP in scenes for new movie

C. W. Productions of Los Angeles selected a site along our railroad near Sacramento for shooting scenes on March 29 and 30 for its new movie "A Time To Every Purpose." Directed by John Florea, the talented cast includes Miss Lesley Warren, Martin Sheen, Jack Albertson in the role of a hobo, who is apprehended by Hal Baylor as a railroad special agent. No date was given for release of the picture sometime later this year.

As winner of last year's Fourth Quarter and Annual PEP Awards, announced in MILEPOSTS January issue, Jay Kump, Elko electrician and electrician helper, recently received his common stock shares. Present were Welder Harold Barry, D. F. Pilkinton, chief mechanical officer, Jay and District Superintendent John Luser, center, Duane McClure write-up man, and Machinist Ruelon Jones.

Reminded of Early Days

Thank you for keeping me on MILEPOSTS' mailing list. The cover picture for the March-April 1971 issue brought back memories of the early days. My son, Robert, had taken many pictures of WP trains. One he took at Keddie on May 31, 1941, when he was 18, is similar to the one on your cover. He loaned the negative to WP for printing on a menu which was later returned. Robert is now owner of the San Rafael Auto Parts. On March 28 I served as a committee member for the National Forum Tea of the Political Science Club at College Women's Club in Berkeley. Louis Stein gave a lecture on a "Centennial of Railroading in the East Bay" illustrated with his slides. He is well known for his lectures on California History.
